Why music?

Making music is a proven way to increase joy and decrease stress in one's life.

Point Grey Music encourages the development of community, a wonderful by-product of making music! Aside from learning and performing repertoire, music allows people to make lasting friendships and memories.

"Point Grey Music is a place where you can make friends that you would've never imagined meeting, and find peace and joy amidst Algebra, French, or Bio." - Sam, PG '21

"I found that music really teaches you to adapt and do your best in a team... You have to be aware of those around you and how you can support everyone else." - Emily, PG '21

We have a lot of fun!

Annual retreats and tours are anticipated highlights for Point Grey Music students, in addition to regular classes and concerts held at school. The focus is on building friendships within the music student community as well as continuing to develop techniques and skills. Some ensembles are also occasionally invited to perform at festivals held throughout the Lower Mainland and beyond.

Music goes beyond Point Grey

Many students and alumni have gone on to pursue post-secondary music studies. Others have become members of renowned local ensembles such as the Vancouver Chamber Choir, UBC University Singers, and the UBC Symphonic Wind Ensemble.

Supporting Point Grey Music

Parent volunteers play a big part in the Point Grey Music Supporters Society (PGMSS), which supports Point Grey Music through fundraising efforts. Money raised is used to pay for festival entrance fees, the purchase and repair of instruments, sheet music, transportation, and music clinics. The PGMSS exists to support and enhance a thriving music program at Point Grey Secondary.
